

ABSTRACT

A semiconductor device comprises a semiconductor IC chip provided with electrode pads, and an insulating layer formed on a surface of the semiconductor IC chip, on the side of the electrode pads. Connecting terminals on the outer surface of the insulating layer and the electrode pads are connected by conductive posts. The insulating layer is formed of an insulating elastic material, and the conductive posts are formed of a conductive elastic material.